

Mining claims up; mostly for the big guys

BY ED YUDIN
Herald Staff Writer

Over 6000 claims have been staked in the Skeena Mining Division so far this year, thanks in a large measure to the claims rush which took place in Terrace June 22, which Dick Morgan, a government mineral claims inspector in Smithers says is half the number of claims filed throughout the entire province just four years ago.

The provincial department of mines, energy and petroleum resources surveyed an area of approximately 1,200 square miles from Kitimat to Stewart and from Cedarvale out to the coast. Two map sheets containing mineral survey information were released in Terrace June 22. Morgan said Wednesday the interest in this area preceded the late release date.

"There was activity in the area a month or two prior to the release of the maps. Once we announced we would survey the Skeena area for evidence of potential mining locations, many people went out on their own and staked their claims. But there was quite a list of claims on the 22nd and 23rd of June."

On June 22 many major mining companies rented helicopters and took off from the Terrace airport to stake their claims. The survey maps released by the department of mines gave information on where elements such as copper, silver, nickel and zinc would be located.

In total, survey data was compiled for 13 elements in over 4000 locations. Copies of the maps could be obtained for only $20, a paltry sum for a potential gold mine.

While the program was ostensibly created to encourage and aid individual prospectors, it was the large mining companies which appear to have benefited the most.

Claims are often staked in the name of individuals and the transferred later to the company," explained Morgan. "That is actually the usual procedure for these things." Morgan adds that some local companies and individuals have been able to stake their claims.

Radio strike may hit here, ground planes

by ED YUDIN
Herald Staff Writer

All scheduled flights at the Terrace-Kitimat airport may be cancelled today as radio operators at 20 small B.C. airports are planning to stage a study session to protest a recent wage settlement handed down by a government-appointed conciliation board.

Malcolm Llewellyn, the shop steward of local 2017 of the Union of Canadian Transport Employees was non-committal about the chances of the walkout affecting Terrace. However, he did admit it was "a distinct possibility."

Since there are no air traffic controllers at the Terrace Airport, a walkout by the six radio operators might force cancellation of all flights. The radio operators are responsible for giving airport advisory information to pilots.

As well, flight safety information is provided by the workers. The weather office is manned by the radio operators in the evenings.

The walkout itself, if it occurs, would last but a few hours, according to Llewellyn. That would be enough to cancel all Friday's flights. A study session by local 2017 would also affect the Smithers airport.

There is also a possibility C.P. Air will try to run operations by using management and essential services personnel only. Llewellyn points out, however, that in general airlines do not operate under these conditions.

"They can't do everything. There are some services which one or two people simply can't do themselves. Of course, only time will tell."

The protest, which is not authorized by the Public Service Alliance of Canada, would disrupt routine aircraft communications, weather information and flight planning services.

Ship communications at about half a dozen Coast Guard stations in B.C. also would be affected.

Bev Sherman, alliance regional representative, said Wednesday that flights at Vancouver International Airport and larger regional airports would not be affected because most of their communications are handled by air traffic controllers rather than by radio operators.

The union has been without a contract since July, 1978. The conciliation offer provided a $1250 increase retroactive to Aug. 1, 1978, and a further $1,300 as of Aug. 1 this year.

Salary levels now range from $13,328 annually to $15,500. The union hasn't called for a ratification vote on the proposed settlement.

Air service is on the increase

by ED YUDIN
Herald Staff Writer

Air travellers in the Northwest can look forward to increased service in the months ahead. Some time ago Pacific Western Airlines announced plans to run a Terrace to Prince George to Calgary service which would ostensibly cost travellers 18 to 20 percent less than the going rate charged by C.P. Air and now another airline is getting into the act.

Airwest Airlines Ltd. of Vancouver is planning to consolidate its service and provide new coastal flight schedule from Vancouver to Prince Rupert and the Queen Charlotte Islands. Airwest would use its newly purchased 743 planes to shuttle between Vancouver and the Northwest. Terrace and Kitimat may be the next stop.

"Without question Terrace will be involved," says Dick

Laidman, former President of Pacific Western Airlines and now head of Airwest. "When things are straightened out, we will go into the community (Terrace and Kitimat) and investigate how we can help upgrade commuter service."

Airwest first must receive approval from the Canadian Transport Commission for its purchase of Pacific Coastal Airlines Ltd. of Nanaimo and Trans Provincial Airlines of Prince Rupert. One approval is forthcoming, the operating licences can be combined for the northern flights and perhaps Terrace and Kitimat eventually.

"We will certainly inaugurate service where we find the need. In the meantime we have decided to start two day flights to and from Sandspit," Laidman said. Previously there had been only one flight a day out of Sandspit in the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Joanne Hofmann, the Herald's circulation manager, is glad that students are coming back to school because she is looking for newspaper carriers. Carriers are required for the 5900 block Agar Ave., Hemlock St., Highway 16 West, Thornhill St., Willow Creek, Woodland Park, Burgess and Laurier, Seaton Ave., and Larch and Alder.

HORRORS! Price of beer goes up again

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia beer drinkers will have to pay more to wet their whistles during the holiday weekend.

Consumer Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen announced today that the retail price of bottled and canned beer will increase Saturday by 35 cents a dozen.

Nielsen said that a dozen bottles of beer will cost $4.50, plus a deposit of 60 cents. The minister also said beer parlors will be permitted to increase the price of draught beer by a maximum of five cents a glass. A quarter-litre of draught beer in B.C. now costs from 40 to 50 cents.

However, Prince George Breweries will retain current prices on packaged and draught beer, the branch said.

In hotels, pubs and cabarets, regular bottled beer will cost up to 15 cents more.

Socreds bought election

VICTORIA (CP) — The Social Credit party spent almost three times more than the New Democratic Party to get elected in the May 10 British Columbia election.

The Social Credit government was re-elected, but with a reduced majority and three cabinet ministers were defeated. The party got 51 of the 57 seats created by redistribution. The NDP took the rest.

PRINCE RUPERT

Seven killed in air crash

By GREG MIDDLETON
Herald Staff Writer

Seven persons were killed Thursday night when a Trans Provincial Airlines Grumman Goose crashed while en route to Seal Cove, near Prince Rupert.

Three other passengers survived the crash on Digby Island, about a mile and a half from the nearest access road. One of the survivors has been flown to Vancouver and is listed as in critical condition. The other two survivors were flown by helicopter to hospital in Prince Rupert.

The crash, which occurred at about 7:30 p.m., resulted in power being cut off on Digby Island. A C.P. Air flight from Vancouver to Seal Cove was diverted to Terrace.

A helicopter pilot flying in the area at the time of the crash of the regularly scheduled flight from the mining community of Kitimat said the twin-engine plane crashed in a B.C. Hydro right of way.

He said there was a fire. A helicopter pilot flying in the area at the time of the crash of the regularly scheduled flight from the mining community of Kitimat said the twin-engine plane hit a power pole.

The amphibious airplane, which was supposed to land at TPA's seaplane base at Seal Cove at 7:15 p.m., was carrying a full load of a pilot and nine passengers when it went down.

Also weather at the time of the crash was described by the weather office as good. No names had been released at press time.

Statistics say is worse now

OTTAWA (CP) — Two major indicators of a worsening in the country's economic fortunes were unveiled in quick succession Thursday by federal statisticians.

First Statistics Canada reported that the country's monthly trade surplus for July was a disappointing $77 million. This represented a drop from the June surplus of $206 million and was greeted by Trade Minister Michael Wilson as unwelcome evidence that there is no hope of matching last year's attractive trade performance.

Then the federal agency published a piece of even worse economic news. For the first time in three years, the country's level of production shrank during the second quarter of the year. The bad news does not mean the country is in a recession, as the U.S. now is experiencing. A country must fall to experience economic growth for two consecutive quarters before it is considered in a recession.

It was a sharp contrast to the first three months of the year during which the economy surged ahead at an annual rate of 6.8 per cent.

Government analysts said the poor second quarter showing was mainly the result of deteriorating economic conditions within the United States. Carter administration officials conceded this week that the U.S. is indeed into a full-fledged recession.

EXPORTERS HIT HARD Since the United States is by far the largest foreign customer for Canadian goods, the recession has hit Canadian exporters hard.

In contrast to the booming markets they experienced last year, manufacturers of wood, paper, aluminum and motor vehicles have had to reduce production and in many cases lay off workers because of the shrinking U.S. market.

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent said serious unemployment problems will develop in the winter unless Prime Minister Clark acts now to get the economy moving.

He expressed hope the government will live up to its campaign promise to give consumers income tax breaks. This would not only offer relief to individuals, but would provide the buying power needed to keep companies operating at healthy levels, he said.

Liberal finance critic Herb Gray told reporters: "We're slipping into a recession and the new Conservative government doesn't even seem to have noticed."

He refused, on behalf of his party which was in power until May 22, to accept blame for the country's declining economic performance.

Gray said the Conservatives have had three months to implement their own measures to strengthen the economy, but have introduced no major initiatives.

BRACE UP FOR WORST

SASKATOON (CP) — Canadians must brace themselves for fundamental changes in energy matters, Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn said Thursday.

In a speech prepared for a Financial Post conference, the minister outlined government policy thinking on energy issues for the 1980's and declared:

"What must be done in Canada is not just a bit of tinkering. We must initiate some fundamental changes in supply, pricing and conservation policies."

He also emphasized that the various regions of Canada must be willing to share the cost and benefits of energy issues, a problem he would be discussing with provincial authorities.

"We must remember that we all run the risk of dividing this country as it has never before been divided."

Hnatyshyn said current Canadian prices, about $10 a barrel below world prices, do not encourage Canadians to conserve energy.

"Obviously, some more appropriate area than the 12-increase-a-year is necessary," the minister said, referring to the current schedule to increase domestic oil prices $1 a barrel at six-month intervals.

He said that in 1978 Canadians spent $22 billion on energy, 10 per cent of the gross national product.

Another problem was that foreign-owned oil companies benefit more from present tax incentives than smaller Canadian firms.

"We will be taking steps to increase the opportunities for Canadians in the energy sector."

The minister also said petroleum products will be in tight supply this fall and winter, but added:

"I am confident that we will see our way through this difficult period although the margin for safety is not great."

have titles to resources to benefit fully from their development.

"I strongly endorse the ownership rights over resources of the producing provinces."

"But the federal government must deal with the macro-economic and regional problems caused by increases in oil prices."

There are nine principles on which federal energy policies should be based: Energy self-sufficiency by 1990 with increased Canadian ownership; prices that reflect true replacement costs; resolving problems fairly for all Canadians; increased support for conservation; substitution of abundant energy resources for scarce ones; an energy policy that supports economic growth in Canada; greater security of supply, particularly for Quebec and the Atlantic provinces; encouragement of research and development for new energy sources; and safe and environmentally acceptable energy production.

The minister warned that Canada must move faster to develop domestic oil sources. Last year, Canada had an oil-trade deficit of $1.4 billion.

He said that in 1978 Canadians spent $22 billion on energy, 10 per cent of the gross national product.

Another problem was that foreign-owned oil companies benefit more from present tax incentives than smaller Canadian firms.

"We will be taking steps to increase the opportunities for Canadians in the energy sector."

The minister also said petroleum products will be in tight supply this fall and winter, but added:

"I am confident that we will see our way through this difficult period although the margin for safety is not great."

Six more fish boats seized

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal catch of U.S. tuna boats fishing in Canadian waters continued to grow Thursday. With eight taken earlier in the week released on $5,000 bond each, federal fisheries officials seized two more of the vessels Wednesday and another six Thursday.

Taken in hand Wednesday evening were Proud Mary of San Diego, Calif., and Santa Innes of Aberdeen, Wash., while Lucky Strike, Spirit and Bambee II of Coos Bay, Ore., Sea Breeze of San Diego, Three Score of San Francisco and Sue Boy of San Pedro, Calif., were seized Thursday.

Two other boats had been sighted on the fishing ground off the Queen Charlotte Islands and were expected to be picked up today.

All of the U.S. boats seized are taken in charge by federal fisheries officials and taken to Victoria where their captains are charged under the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act for fishing inside Canada's 200-mile protected limit.

The eight captains taken earlier in the week all pleaded not guilty to the charges and were released, with their cargoes, to await trial.

Federal Fisheries Minister James McGrath has said all violations of Canada's 200-mile limit will be prosecuted. Canadian and U.S. officials have been trying to resolve the dispute to head off any escalation of the problem.

Some U.S. boat owners have ordered their vessels out of the area and the exact number remaining was not known.

The United States doesn't recognize Canada's claim to tuna within the 200-mile limit. It maintains that migratory fish such as tuna are subject only to a 12-mile limit.

Hurricane devastates the island

BRIDGETOWN (AP) — Hurricane David has devastated the tiny Caribbean island of Dominica, killing at least four people and leveling all the houses in the capital, Roseau, Barbados radio reported Thursday.

The storm flattened crops on Dominica and the neighboring islands of Martinique and Guadeloupe on Wednesday, then headed northwest at about 24 kilometres an hour Thursday toward the southern coasts of Puerto Rico and Hispaniola Island, shared by Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

There are about 450 Canadian tourists in Martinique and another 550 in Puerto Rico. It was not immediately known whether there were any Canadian casualties.

Authorities said the hurricane's centre was about 130 kilometres south of Puerto Rico and Hispaniola on Thursday afternoon and low-lying coastal areas there were evacuated as a precaution. Winds were clocked at 240 kilometres an hour.

On Dominica, Prime Minister Oliver Seraphin predicted the death toll would go much higher and ordered government buildings, schools and churches opened to an estimated 60,000 persons whose homes, wooden homes were destroyed by the hurricane, Barbados radio said.

Dominica has a population of 81,000, with about 18,000 in Roseau, one of the poorest cities in the central Caribbean.

The radio report was based on accounts from amateur radio operators on Dominica, 320 kilometres northwest of Bridgetown, the capital of Barbados.

British government authorities in London said the Royal Navy destroyer Fife arrived at Dominica, a former British colony, on Thursday morning to provide emergency relief. A dispatch from the Fife said few buildings in the capital were undamaged.

The island was left without communications, water or electricity, and the roof of the main hospital in Roseau was partially blown off.

Dominica has asked the United States for emergency relief aid, U.S. Coast Guard Lieut. Jeff Tarr said Thursday in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The hurricane injured 30 people and left hundreds homeless on Martinique, 48 kilometres south of Dominica, the French Office of Overseas Territories said Thursday in Paris.

French officials said the storm injured 15 people

Herald editor Greg Middleton accepts award from Anne Luedey for promoting the hiring of and hiring students for the summer.

EXCEPT FOR TERRACE

Students found work

BY ED YUDIN
Herald Staff Writer

This summer's Student Employment program sponsored by the Canada Employment Centre in Terrace is over, and it appears to have been a huge success—at least in Kitimat and Prince Rupert.

Final statistics released Thursday show that 130 Kitimat students received summer jobs by applying through the program—about double last year's figure. The figures for Prince Rupert also show an increase in the area of 100 per cent. Terrace though, remained at about the same level, 158 students got jobs through the program.

Ann Luedey, the officer in charge for the summer employment program in the northwest, attributes much of the employment program's success to good promotion.

"Getting out into the community and being involved with the employers was a real help. Also we received a certain amount of enthusiasm from the students themselves. Many of them going out and look for jobs on their own."

Aside from co-ordinating the program in the northwest, Luedey conducted the student referral service for Terrace. She said the job opportunities came from a number of employers, ranging from the municipality to merchants.

"We found many jobs for students through the Young Canada Works project, especially through the District of Terrace," said Luedey. "Organizations such as the Terrace Lions helped."

Luedey did not find the large companies in Kitimat, Alcan and Eurocan particularly helpful, especially since they have their own placement programs.

"In the future I would like to see more liaison with the different companies," she said.

There were 459 registrants in Terrace, 280 more in Kitimat. Many were able to find jobs on their own. Luedey was pleased to note a substantial increase in the number of post-secondary school students able to secure summer employment.

The manager of the Canada Manpower office in Terrace, Bob Haines, said it is just great to see the number of students employed.

"The students need the money to continue with their education. I'm glad to see employers co-operating with them and allowing them to get experience as well as making some money," commented Haines.

"Down the road they will be better able to compete in the job market. They'll have an idea of what's involved in a full time job. It may also encourage them to continue in school," he concluded.

It was a good year for student placement throughout B.C. Statistics show the program placed 29 per cent more students in summer jobs as of July 31 as compared to 1978.

Autumn sees new schedule

Autumn is here again and so are the Terrace recreation departments fall programs.

Watch for the new yellow and blue program booklet which will be mailed to homes the first week of September.

Since the Northwest Community College has been without a continuing education coordinator, the recreation department is bringing Terrace residents a totally new booklet.

This fall the recreation department is offering the community more quality programs than ever before, all with very well qualified and enthusiastic instructors and leaders.

There are ten no-charge fitness and sports programs for children and adults, so there is no excuse for not getting out and getting fit.

Couples are encouraged to get out together this season and join the two new co-ed fitness or sports programs and get into shape together.

There is also more opportunity now for women with preschoolers to get out and partake in a recreation program. There are four programs during the day now for women; two fitness, one craft and one general interest program. All of these programs have day care available with them. There are also weekend workshops coming up for adults and children plus three regular Saturday programs especially for children.

In addition, a number of programs designed especially for women in areas that they were formerly unable to participate in, such as hockey and soccer are offered. Of course, there is the usual hockey, soccer, rugby etc. for the men.

This season there is only one program for seniors but it should prove to be a very popular one; The Senior Chef. We hope to be able to offer more for seniors in the winter season.

The booklets also include all of the pool programs and swim times as well as a full ice arena schedule. This ice will be in and ready for use on Sept 10. The pool will be closed Sept 4 for a few weeks for an annual maintenance and will be open by Oct 1 for its fall program. You may register on Saturday, Sept 15, 1979 in the arena banquet room between 10

WEATHER

The Terrace weather office predicts cloud and rain Friday morning, with a few sunny periods in the afternoon. High should be about 18 degrees Celsius with a projected low of 10 degrees.

Outlook for the holiday weekend: Mainly cloudy on Saturday and Sunday. Showers possibly on Monday. Temperatures will be slightly cooler.

NEW YORK (AP) — Childproof aspirin containers have halved the number of accidental poisonings among young children, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission says. The commission says data from poison control centres across the country showed that the accidental swallowing of baby aspirin was reduced by between 45 and 65 per cent and non-baby aspirin products by between 40 and 45 per cent.

EDITORIAL

A student who was involved in the Neighborhood Watch program sponsored by the RCMP here comments below on the program and on the response Terrace residents had to it.

That the student who worked hard for the summer to do something to help local residents protect themselves was disappointed in not the program but in the attitude of the locals is obvious.

The police in this town work hard to catch those who break the law. They spend a good deal of their time tracking down the vandals and thieves that attack the homes and businesses here.

They do this in spite of a lack of interest in even basic security shown by many Terrace residents.

It can happen to you. It happens to two or three Terrace residents a night.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

The Neighborhood Watch Summer Job Corps Project has ended for another summer. The student workers including myself are going back to school. We were shown how the RCMP and other departments of the justice system interact. If for no other reason, this education made the job worthwhile. Our job was to make Terrace more security conscious and safe. It is doubtful whether we were successful.

If the project were repeated, I would not change the manner in which we went about our work. Besides advertising on radio, in the newspapers and with road signs, letters were delivered to a majority of the households in Terrace with invitations to come to a security meeting. The opportunity was given to the residents of Terrace to make their homes and neighborhoods safer places to live.

Between 150 and 200 homes were canvassed for each meeting. Attendance averaged less than 15 people per meeting. That a minority of Terrace residents took up our offer is a result of the complacency of Canadians towards crime. "It's not going to happen to me." "I don't want to get involved." People may not be saying these things out loud, but by their inaction they label themselves.

The theory behind the Neighborhood Watch Program states that thieves and vandals exist. Furthermore, the police are limited in their ability to prevent these criminals from practising their professions or hobbies. The police cannot patrol their region of responsibility continuously, hourly or even daily. The home and business owner is in the best position to protect his own property and must take the responsibility to do so.

The Neighborhood Watch Program does not eliminate break and enterings. But the program has affected the manner in which these crimes now occur in this province. Break and enterings is one of the few categories of crime which has declined (minimally) over the past two years. These period corresponds roughly to a major push of this program. Provincially only 5 per cent of break-ins occur in homes participating in the Neighborhood Watch Program. It is also interesting to compare the average cost of stolen property from homes which do and do not participate in the program. The average non-participating home lost $257 worth of goods. Those belonging to the program averaged $46 in lost goods.

The Neighborhood Watch Program seems to work. The RCMP believes that it works. Through the Summer Job Corps the RCMP have promoted the program for two summers and been available to assist residents in its workings throughout the year. Terrace's response has been disappointing. Canadian Police forces continue to fight an unending war against crime. When will other people realize that the police will not win that war alone?

For their assistance to the Neighborhood Watch Program I would like to thank those people and organizations that gave us meeting space, materials and advertising. There is always hope for any project when this type of community assistance is available. In no particular order: CFTK Radio, The Masons, The Alliance, Anglican, Christian Reform, Sacred Heart and Zion Baptist Churches, Omnesa Building Supplies, Albert and MacCaffery, The Kermode Friendship Centre, The Thornhill Community Hall, The Rod and Gun Club, The Northwest Community College, The Municipality of Terrace and this newspaper. I would also like to thank the Centennial Lions Club for the $100 they provided to cover project transportation costs.

In closing I would like to mention an interesting fact. Around half the people that attended the security meetings had suffered a break-in or knew someone who had suffered such an event. Will the program in Terrace continue to protect those people who have been victimized already? How many burglaries will it take to get the majority of residents involved in such a worthy program?

Thanks to all the people who did come to the meetings. These programs work better the greater the number of people involved. Work on your neighbors.

I think we'd all like to have a safer city.
Yours truly
(Brock Elliott)

MONEY DRAIN

U.S. cancels Cuban tours

NEW YORK (CP) — The United States is cancelling the licence of a major tour company that carries up to 10,000 Cuban-Americans a month to Havana and brings millions of dollars into the Cuban treasury.

The growing flow of hard currency, desperately needed by the Cuban government, presented a loophole in the trade embargo the U.S. maintains against Cuba.

Havanatur, based in Panama, sells eight-day package tours to Havana for $650 a person, booking flights from Miami to Havana and using planes chartered from three small non-U.S. airlines.

But many of the Cuban exiles, allowed to visit their homeland for only one week under the Cuban government's family reunification program, brought large sums of money to give to relatives as well as much-needed drugs, medicine, clothing and other items.

Cuban exiles back from Havana report grim shortages exist in almost everything.

One Cuban woman reported that salaries are so low and prices so high for goods that relatives were begging for financial help.

She said that a pair of jeans was selling for $129 U.S. in one store and other prices for clothing were prohibitive.

And when she went to change U.S. dollars for Cuban pesos, she said she got only 72 pesos for $100 while the official rate is supposed to be par.

At least 50,000 Cuban-Americans have visited Cuba since March, giving the Cuban economy a multi-million-dollar shot in the arm.

On the humanitarian side, many of the exiles are saddened by the U.S. state department's decision to cancel Havanatur's operating licence.

The company has been sole agent for the family reunification flights and planned to extend its operations to Los Angeles, New York and San Juan, Puerto Rico, which all have sizable Cuban exile communities.

But the largest is in the Miami area, where some 200,000 Cubans live.

The state department says that the Civil Aeronautics Board, which granted an operating permit to Havanatur last year, didn't clear it with the treasury department, which oversees U.S. embargo policies.

The state department says the exile tour business to Cuba should be handled by American companies but whether Cuban President Fidel Castro will allow them to operate on such a large scale as Havanatur is another question.

While other companies have conducted tours, none has been as successful as Havanatur in arranging for visas for Cuban exiles.

The state department says that while Havanatur is technically Panamanian, it is controlled by the Cuban government and uses charter planes from its government-owned Cubana Airlines.

Havanatur insists it will remain in business. It will operate flights from other countries, but they will be more expensive for Cuban exiles than the direct Miami-Havana route.

Previously, Cuban-Americans used to fly from Jamaica to Havana.

Canada, which has full trade relations with Cuba, allows a twice-weekly service to Havana. Air Canada has one flight a week from Toronto and Cubana Airlines flies weekly from Montreal. These flights are made up mainly of package tours.

FINEST SOUND

Old blue Edison's sought

SASKATOON (CP) — Until disc-type records hit the market in 1912, Thomas Edison's Blue Amberols were considered the finest in cylinder records. They were named for their blue color and followed his brown and black wax Amberols.

The Western Development Museum in Saskatoon has been busy cataloguing about 1,200 of the early Amberol records produced from 1891 to 1929.

The name was used by Edison's three recording companies, although other companies such as Columbia also produced cylinder records.

Graeme West, production manager at Studio West recording studio in Saskatoon, says the cylinder record probably could have attained the same technical quality as flat records since both had good and bad points.

"The need to mass produce really tipped the scales in favor of flat records," West explains. "With a flat record you can print out many copies from the same plate."

There are only a few of the fragile wax records among the museum's collection of wax and celluloid cylinder records, donated over a period of years.

Anita Jants, one of the persons cataloguing the collection, says the wax records did not have as long a life as the harder celluloid type. They cracked more easily and could warp if stored in humid conditions.

But even the high quality Blue Amberols are a far cry from the sophisticated stereophonic sounds of today.

The Edison photographs of the early 1900s scratched out everything from religious music to comedy, in tones practically unrecognizable.

Popular songs of the times such as Abide With Me, On Moonlight Bay and Casey Jones are part of the museum's collection, along with more obscure ones such as I Lost My Heart In Honolulu.

The old records have been catalogued by Saskatoon students under a grant from the National Museums of Canada.

IN BOOKS

Price hikes cuts sales

NEW YORK (AP) — The economic recession is delivering a body blow to book publishers, who find that consumers are reacting to higher prices by reducing purchases.

The decline in sales is causing deep concern in the normally lucrative American publishing industry, which is looking for ways to lower costs and is even trying selective price cuts to stimulate sales.

"It seemed to have been a relatively recession-proof business," says Alexander Hoffman, chairman of the Association of American Publishers. "In 1978-79, the industry didn't even feel it."

But as the economy has slowed this year, publishers have seen their sales slide. Hoffman says an AAP survey of 97 publishing houses indicates that sales during the first five months of this year — both for hardcover books and mass-market paperbacks — were down, possibly by more than 10 per cent, from the same period of 1978.

"Books have traditionally done very well during periods of recession," says C. Royce Smith, executive director of the American Booksellers Association. "But not this time."

He estimates that sales in bookstores were down by about 10 per cent in the second quarter.

Some publishing industry officials contend that book sellers were hurt by the last recession. But they say that trend went virtually unnoticed at the time because book prices were rising so fast that total sales figures rose even though fewer books were sold.

But there is agreement that this time the pinch is being felt.

Some retailers say publishers haven't delivered any "blockbuster" best-sellers that draw customers.

It is an article of faith among booksellers that big hit books are needed to draw people into bookstores.

"There's a paucity of big titles," complains Floyd

Hall, the president of B. Dalton Booksellers, which claims to be the largest chain of bookstores in the United States. "We depend on these big books to get people into the stores," where they will impulsively buy other titles, as well.

Another factor hurting sales may be the growth in some areas of stores specializing in used paperbacks, with readers able to trade in their old books. No one has compiled statistics on sales in those stores, but one magazine article on the subject brought 2,000 inquiries from people interested in starting such businesses.

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

BY RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa. You'd never know it from reading the Canadian news despatches from Africa that the Commonwealth Conference in Lusaka, Zambia, on the fate wrapped up in the sweetness and light of a "civilized" peace plan.

Well, that may be the way it was told to the Canadian correspondents who relayed it to the Canadian public who swallowed it sort of absently because most Canadians really don't care one way or another.

But Britain and the British press—well, that's a far different story.

The Daily Express, by far the largest of the quality "popular" papers which still regards itself as "The Voice of Britain" and the "Crusader of the Commonwealth," along with the Daily Mail and the other mass circulation dailies saw it as a terrorist browbeating of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and a betrayal of democracy.

The Express opened its front page splash by Foreign Editor John Ellison with the headline: "Terror Boss Nkomo, Piling on Insults for Britain—The Killer Behind Maggie."

And there they were in a page-wide photograph, Nkomo, the guerilla leader grinning triumphantly over the concerned Mrs. Thatcher.

The report began:

"The most notorious terrorist of the Rhodesian war, Joshua Nkomo, sat smirking under a Union Jack a few seats above Mrs. Margaret Thatcher at the Commonwealth Conference."

"Nkomo said: 'I am here for myself,' but he was officially invited by conference host, Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda as an extra snub to Mrs. Thatcher who is being constantly insulted here as a 'racist'."

"The guerilla chief—whose 'boys' terrorize the Zimbabwe-Rhodesian border from Zambia and who publicly gloated when they shot down two civilian airliners—was still full of threats."

"Mrs. Thatcher has learned a lot, he said loftily, 'but I don't think the British know what majority rule is.'"

"Anyway the war has advanced to such a stage that what is left is for us to push into the urban areas and finish the whole business with Ian Smith being put up against the wall and shot."

The Express continues:

"To the 'British' here it seemed an astonishing commentary on African politics that such a man should be allowed to sit among the Commonwealth delegates supposedly devoted to the ideals of humanity, justice and democracy."

"Yet as he sat in the oval hall in a white shirt and dark suit there were no signs of outrage at his record of terror campaigns against churches and schools across the Rhodesian border."

"Indeed the real tragedy is that three out of four of the leaders of the Commonwealth will accept the pressure verdict of the warlike African states that the terrorist Nkomo is one of the sole true representatives of the new Zimbabwe."

"What has to be faced now is this: it is highly unlikely, to put it mildly, that an agreed solution can be worked out."

"For it is doubtful that the guerillas will stop fighting or that Tanzania or Zambia will abandon them."

"Of course we must go through the motions of trying to secure an agreement, but in the end we have to act with or without it."

"And that action can only take the form of lifting sanctions against Rhodesia, by November at the latest, and extending re/mission."

"Would this break up the Commonwealth?"

"If so, it would be a pity. But we can live without it."

The British, to read their press, have had it with carrying the white man's burden for the Commonwealth unrestricted black immigration, race riots in London and the industrial midlands, Nigerian nationalization during this very conference of British oil interests as an extra goad.

But to read in The Express that the Commonwealth can get lost is like being told there was no Rudyard Kipling, no lilac-time at Kew, and that Trafalgar Square was built only as a pigeon roost.

Asylum sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nine members of the Leonard Pelletier Defence Committee, an offshoot of the radical American Indian Movement, were allowed to enter Canada from the United States on Thursday with the intention of seeking political asylum.

Gerry Douglas, a Canada immigration department supervisor, said the nine were admitted as visitors and will deal with the department's Vancouver office if they want to remain.

Douglas said one member of the group was detained at the Aldergrove border crossing, east of Vancouver, because he was not admissible under the Immigration Act because of a criminal record, however, the man later was granted special ministerial dispensation and allowed to enter with the rest of the party.

He said all have the right to apply for political asylum from inside the country, but such cases are decided by a high-level ministerial committee in Ottawa.

Orville Milk, a spokesman for the Seattle-based defence committee, said in a telephone interview from the border crossing that the group had intended to apply for asylum after attending a weekend rally in the Vancouver area in support of Pelletier, a former Indian movement leader now serving two life sentences in a U.S. federal prison for the murders of two FBI agents.

Milk said the group announced their intention to remain after its leader, Steve Robideau, was taken into custody by the RCMP because of a criminal record.

He said the group wants political asylum in Canada because of what he claimed was harassment and unwarranted arrests of defence

Strike notice served

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America is serving strike notice on seven forest companies where members have voted to strike to back contract demands.

Union members at four other companies voted not to strike.

Although the strike notice is effective Monday, it "does not mean we are calling a strike," said a union spokesman.

The 5,500 IWA members in the Northern Interior took the strike vote on the issue of changing the expiry date of their contract — now Aug. 31 — to coincide with the dates of other IWA regions.

The previous Coast contract expired June 15; the Southern Interior expired June 30.

Both Coast and Southern Interior members voted earlier to ratify two-year contracts providing increases of 90 cents an hour in the first year and 9.5 per cent in the second on base rates of $8.16 an hour.

Gov't wants gas quickly

VICTORIA (CP) — Government leaders, from British Columbia, Alaska and the Yukon have called for a planned natural gas pipeline through Canada to the United States to proceed as quickly as possible.

B.C. Premier Bill Bennett said following a meeting with Alaska Governor Jay Hammond and Yukon Commissioner Ione Christensen on Wednesday that their discussions included ways various pipelines might affect each area and how any problems might best be dealt with. Hammond also said he preferred an all-land oil pipeline route if the project is shown to be economic. He said that oil tankers already call at Valdez, Alaska and pass along the Alaskan coastline and he would prefer a pipeline in any expansion of oil deliveries. "I was very regretable about that proposal when the oil pipeline route was originally being discussed," said Hammond. "I was the only political figure imprudent enough to suggest they ought to have taken a harder look at the Canadian route because we could have precluded any tankering at all."

Mrs. Christensen said an oil pipeline would pass partially through the Yukon.

COACH WATCHES TRIO

VANCOUVER (CP) — There were times last season when coach Harry Neale of Vancouver Canucks just couldn't resist casting an anxious glance at the Pacific Coliseum press box during National Hockey League games.

Neale's concern was for the three young men who looked rather uncomfortable propped up in the back row of the press box, a position they occupied for much of the 1978-79 season.

Glen Hanlon, Bill Derlago and Kevin McCarthy are considered to hold the key to the future of the NHL team as the Canucks make final preparations for the coming season's training camp in three weeks time.

The three youngsters will command much of Neale's attention in camp as the coach attempts to determine whether they have recovered from serious injuries which rendered them virtually useless for most of last season.

General manager Jake Milford considers the trio to be the key to any success Vancouver enjoys when the Canucks enter their 10th NHL season in October.

"These three guys have great winning attitudes," says Milford. "They want to win and, because of their character, they will add a lot of personality to our team."

"The younger guys are taking over this team and Hanlon, Derlago and McCarthy are expected to join in with our other young players and make this an exciting franchise in future years."

Hanlon is a goaltender who played spectacularly last season until he suffered stretched knee ligaments; Derlago is a centre who briefly showed a flair for scoring goals until undergoing surgery for a torn knee cartilage; and McCarthy is a defenceman obtained in a trade with Philadelphia Flyers to bolster the power play, but who appeared in only one game before being sidelined with a hip injury which required surgery.

Milford and Neale are counting on all three to join youngsters like Jere Gillis, Stan Smyl, Thomas Gradin and Curt Frazer to provide a solid playoff contender in 1979-80 in the Smythe Division.

Hanlon is perhaps the most valuable of all. He appeared in 31 games last season as a rookie and had a respectable 3.10 goals-against average, including three shutouts, before suffering his knee injury. Club officials call him the franchise, with reasonable justification, because behind him are only journeyman netminders like Gary Bromley and Curt Ridley.

"Hanlon has a great attitude and our only worry is that we want to keep him healthy," Milford says. "He enjoys his lifestyle and even thought about taking a cut in pay when we worked out his new contract."

"He was concerned that he might be making too much money, if you can believe that in this day and age. He's just a great kid with an unlimited NHL future ahead of him."

Hanlon, 22, does have one problem, however — he keeps getting injured. His latest problem stems from an injury suffered at his Brandon, Man., home while attempting to prune a tree.

He apparently fell off a ladder and suffered a mild concussion, along with a dislocated elbow. The injury will force him to miss the first two weeks of training camp, although club officials seem confident he can be ready for the regular-season opener.

Hanlon also came close to losing an eye in a fishing accident a month earlier. It seems he was fly casting at a remote British Columbia stream and somehow had the hook catch him under his eye. There was a doctor in the party, however, and no serious damage was done.

Derlago, 21, came to the Canucks last season after a sensational major junior career with Brandon Wheat Kings, the same junior team which produced Hanlon. After a brief trip to the minors last fall, Derlago was recalled and quickly established himself as a scoring threat with a pair of two-goal games.

He played only nine NHL games, however, and was through for the season in November after being decked by a hip check thrown by defender Denis Potvin of New York Islanders. Surgery was required on Derlago's knee, which had been injured the previous year in an international game in Regina against Moscow Selects.

"Derlago is in great shape and his knee appears fine," says Milford. "He's been running all summer and he's within a couple of pounds of the 193 weight Harry (Neale) wants him to report with at training camp."

McCarthy, also 22, came to the Canucks along with winger Drew Callander in a December, 1978, trade with the Flyers which sent winger Dennis Ververgaert to Philadelphia. Milford calls it a "same-duck deal" because McCarthy was injured at the time of the trade.

The Canucks thought so much of McCarthy, however, that they elected to keep him rather than attempt to renegotiate the deal. Club doctors operated and found a foreign substance in McCarthy's hip and Milford says the defenceman now is 100 per cent recovered.

McCarthy was a first-round draft choice in 1977 after a brilliant junior career in Winnipeg. He set many offensive records for defencemen and was named the Western Canada Hockey League's player of the year in 1976-77.

"We were the youngest team in the NHL last season and we'll be the youngest again this year," Milford says. "We developed better spirit on the club last season and now we seem to have the will to win."

"That spirit somehow wasn't here in previous years and you've got to give the young kids credit for changing things around here."

Milford believes that Gradin, a rookie from Sweden last year, will develop into an outstanding NHL centre, an attitude shared by many around the NHL after the 170-pound Gradin showed the Flyers in the Stanley Cup playoffs that he wouldn't back down in the heavy going.

Three in helped

Kansas City Royals rode Darrell Porter's three-run homer and Larry Gura's seven-hitter to an 8-3 victory over New York Yankees and into first place in the American League West Division Thursday night.

The victory was the seventh in the last eight games for Kansas City. That and California's 7-1 loss at Cleveland gave the Royals a one-half game lead over the Angels, who had held first since July 8. California has lost five in a row.

Porter connected in the first inning off Luis Tiant, who allowed six runs in the three innings he worked.

Frank White, who had three hits for the Royals, drove in two runs with a pair of singles. Pete LaCock contributed a triple and a single to the 14-hit Kansas City attack.

Len Barker's six-hitter, Ron Hassey's three-run double and two RBI apiece by Duane Kuiper and Toby Harrah led the Indians past California and Nolan Ryan.

Doc Medich allowed only two Boston hits as Texas Rangers breezed past the Red Sox 6-0. The Rangers shelved Dennis Eckersley for 10 hits, including Al Oliver's 12th home run. Mario Mendoza drove in three runs with a triple and single and Mike Parrott scattered eight hits for a club-record 13th victory this year as Seattle Mariners beat Toronto Blue Jays 9-2.

Jerry Morales drove in three runs with a pair of home runs and Detroit Tigers trimmed Oakland A's 8-7. Sixto Lezcano, who homered in the second inning, drew a bases-loaded walk in the 12th to give Milwaukee Brewers a 4-3 victory over Chicago White Sox.

In the National League, Willie McCovey broke a seventh-inning tie with a pinch single, giving San Francisco a 3-1 victory over St. Louis.

Chicago Cubs were at Los Angeles in a late National League game.

TREVINO'S BIRDIE LEADS IT

WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Lee Trevino, three-time Canadian Open champion, birdied the last four holes with an impressive putting display Thursday for a two-stroke lead over Canadians Jim Nelford and Bob Rose in the first round of the $100,000 Labatt's International golf tournament.

The 39-year-old Trevino, who won the 1979 Canadian Open in June, finished with a four-under-par 67 on the 5,975-yard National Golf Club course to take the lead over Nelford, from Burnaby, B.C., and Rose, a resident of Hamilton.

"I drove the ball quite well today," said Trevino, with more than $2 million in career earnings. "I missed two fairways — the ninth and 11th. I was just hitting it down the middle and on the greens."

A number of the competitors were still on the course when Trevino reached the clubhouse. Among them were Tom Watson, leading money winner on the Professional Golfers' Association tour, and defending champion Lanny Wadkins.

The 72-hole tournament, also for the Canadian PGA championship, began as an international event in Vancouver last year. Previously, it was a closed event for Canadian pros.

Trevino, who has earned $191,650 on the PGA tour this season, set a course record on the tough, picturesque course. However, it's the first pro tournament on the course.

The previous record, a 69, was set two weeks ago by Toronto's Paul Davis.

winner of this year's Ontario amateur title.

Trevino shot an even-par 38 on the front nine in sunny weather. He came home with a four-under 31, thanks to his brilliant finish which included an 18-foot birdie putt on the 15th hole.

He birdied the 16th from 2½ to three feet, had a three-foot birdie on the 17th and completed his round with a 15-footer for a birdie on the 41-yard 18th hole.

On the front nine, Trevino was even after three holes. He birdied the fourth to go one under and stayed that way until the ninth when he bogeyed the 425-yard hole.

The 24-year-old Nelford, who got stung by a bee on the sixth hole, had three birdies in his round. He had a bogey on the 503-yard 12th hole, one of the toughest at the National.

The former Canadian amateur champion, in his second year as a pro, was one under on the front nine and the same on the back.

Nelford, who said he was allergic to bee stings as a youngster, got stung near the right elbow. "It stung all the way round but it didn't bother me. I played pretty well."

Most of the Canadian pros and invited competitors had their problems. Dan Halderson of Shilo, Man., shot an 80 and Simon Owen of New Zealand, who shared second place in this tournament last year, had a 77.

Phil Giroux of Montreal and Greg Pidlaski of Toronto both shot 78. Michel Boyer of Laval, Que., had an 81.

The field will be cut to the low 70s and ties after today's second round.

Tornado Canada's chance

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Tornado is a twin-hulled, speedy sailing machine and, in Canada, Larry Woods is the best.

Woods, who represented Canada at the 1976 Olympics, is fighting hard at the Canadian Olympic Regatta, Kingston (CORK), part of the Olympic trials, to repeat his Olympic competition.

Woods is in third place over all in the class and gives the credit to his crew, John Burrows.

"He is just the most outstanding crew around," Woods said after Thursday's racing, in which he had a first and a third.

The Canadian is up against a tough field. A band of hot American Tornado skippers are in town, making life miserable for Woods and his cohorts.

"The U.S. contingent is very good," Woods said. "It's good to be going against guys like Henry Bossett."

Bossett, of Point Pleasant Beach, N.J., is in first place in the over-all Tornado standings, while Ranny Smythe of Huntington Beach, Calif., is second. Bossett and Woods split Thursday's races.

In the other classes, Tam Matthews of Toronto and Jerry Roufs of Montreal continued their duel in the 470 class. They both got stuck in the fog of the morning race and took a wrong turn, finishing in the bottom of the class.

Paul Rostaert of Dundas, Ont., won the morning race, but was 18th over all. Matthews hung on to a slim lead with Roufs second and Steve Benjamin of Oyster Bay, N.Y., in third.

In the three-man Soling class, William Allen of Highland Park, Ill., held on to first place in the standings, with Peter Hall, of Montreal second and Robbie Haines, the current world champion, third. John Weiss of Toronto and David Curtis of Marblehead, Mass., the morning and afternoon winners, remained well down in the standings.

Terry McLaughlin of Toronto won his second race of the week to hang on to first place in the Flying Dutchman standings. Steve Taylor of New Haven, Conn., was in second place and Greg Tawaastijerna of Toronto was third. Mike Loeb of New Haven, Conn., won his second race of the week but was fourth over all.

Mike Nicoll-Griffiths of Montreal won the Tanzer 22 regatta. The racer-cruiser boat ended their regatta early. David Kennedy of Montreal and Bud Chuet of Hudson Heights, Que., finished second and third respectively.

In the 420 class, Anne Preston of Watertown, Mass., had her third win of the week to consolidate her hold on first place. Nell Taylor of New Haven, Mass., was in second place and Morgan Reeser of Miami was third. Jeff Rubin of Miami won his first race of the week but remained fifth over all.

In the Fireball Class, Brett Willets of North Vancouver, B.C., won two more races to clinch first place. Jeff Boyd of Kingston was second and Albert Pleus of Plandome, N.Y., was third.

Bill Ewing of Monmouth Beach, N.J., added another win to his week's total to clinch his class. Karen McRae of Orillia, Ont., was second and Mike Glew of Sarnia, Ont., was third.

Paul Vancleve of Annapolis, Md., led the Finn standings, winning his second race of the regatta. James Hahn of Edgewater, Md., was second and Peter Commetts, of Mantoloking, N.J., was third. Richard Hewitt of Ottawa won the second race of the day and was fourth over all. Racing ends today.

Two lead fastball tournament

British Columbia and Ontario remained the only undefeated teams after three days of play at the Canadian

Senior Men's fastball Championships here. Jim Piercy pitched a no-hitter as B.C. defeated New Brunswick 2-0 while Ontario beat previously undefeated St. John's 1-0 in nine innings in Thursday's action.

St. John's pitcher Ron Bolland balked in the ninth inning to send home Ed Neudore for the winning run. Bolland pitched a two-hitter in a losing cause.

The winning pitcher was Brad Reliquette who also hurled a two-hitter. Piercy's no-hitter was the third of the tournament. There have also been 11 shut-outs.

Noel Gosselin drove in the winning run in the first inning to give Quebec a 1-0 victory over Saskatchewan.

The winning pitcher was Martin Vachon who gave up just four hits. Ross Guenter took the loss.

N.B. trounced the Northwest Territories 7-2 in other tournament action.

Dern Hartley fanned 12 batters and pitched a seven-hitter to record the win. Floyd Daniels took the loss.

Manitoba scored three runs in the fourth inning to edge Nova Scotia 3-0 and Alberta came from behind to beat the Yukon 2-1.

Games between Quebec and St. John's and Placentia, Nfld., and B.C. were cancelled because of rain. They will be played today.

In other games today before playoff action starts, the Northwest Territories plays Nova Scotia, P.E.I. plays the Yukon and Alberta takes on Ontario.

Grass ace meets five

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Oversake, the Canadianbred grass ace, will meet five rivals Saturday night in the $125,000 United Nations Handicap at Atlantic City.

Jack Stafford's four-year-old colt will carry top weight of 128 pounds in bidding to make the 13-16-mile UN his eighth win in eight starts this year, most on the grass.

Robin Platts will ride the colt who is being pointed for the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe in Paris in October. Others entered Thursday were Haakon Frithelm's Noble Dancer, 125, an English-bred who has won stakes in five countries; Canadian E.P. Taylor's French-bred Dom Alaric, 120, whose most recent wins were in the King Edward Cup at Woodbine in Toronto and Riggs Handicap at Pimlico; P.J. Toraney's Horatius, a triple stakes winner in 1978; New Jersey-bred Dan Horn, 117, winner of the Kelly-Olympic Handicap at Atlantic City and the Longfellow at Monmouth Park; and Janet E. Gidding's Treatise, 112, second in the Kelly-Olympic.

NHL player guilty of fraud

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — A former National Hockey League player was sentenced to one day in jail and fined $500 after pleading guilty in provincial court Thursday to several charges.

Rick Foley, who saw action with three NHL teams over 10 years until 1974, pleaded guilty to three charges of fraud involving worthless cheques, two charges of using a stolen credit card and two charges of failing to attend provincial court in Hamilton.

Foley, 33, of Troy, Ont., wrote cheques totalling $350 from May 5 to June 30 in the Brantford area. He also used a credit card, reported missing May 4, in the Hamilton area. Foley did not attend court in Hamilton on July 5 and July 27 to face charges.

Evonne comes back stronger

NEW YORK (AP) — It took a while, but Evonne Goolagong Cawley made her return to the United States Open tennis championships a successful one.

She beat 21-year-old Kay McDaniel 6-7, 6-4, 6-4 Thursday in a first-round match that was begun on Wednesday. The match was delayed by rain for several hours and then postponed for a day.

"The delays probably helped me," said Goolagong. Her 24-5 match record here is third best among all active women, behind Chris Evert Lloyd and Billie Jean King.

"In a match like this, after a while I begin to lose interest because it drags on so long," Cawley said. "Yesterday was such a long day I just went back and slept. I didn't think about the match at all. I'm relieved it's over."

The 28-year-old Cawley was a finalist in the Open four years in a row, losing to Margaret Court in 1973, Billie Jean King in 1974 and Chris Evert the next two years. She skipped the 1977 Open because she had recently given birth to a daughter and had hurt her ankle.

Cawley has been working herself into competitive shape this summer despite her back injury. She is seeded fifth here and could meet Chris Evert Lloyd in the quarter-finals.

Swinging a good wood

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rob Tod of Winnipeg, using a three-wood off the tee to good advantage, fired a one-over-par 73 to take the second round lead Thursday in the Canadian Junior men's golf championship.

"It seems to get a good swinging tempo going, and the fairways are pretty good," said Tod. "It seems to fit all the fairways with the three wood instead of the driver."

Tod, 17, had a 35-hole total of 145, one better than first round leader Rick Sepp, also 17, of Mount Hope, Ont. Sepp carded a 76 Thursday for a 146.

But Sepp's score was good enough to pace his Ontario team to a five-stroke win in the interprovincial team championship with a final combined score of 450.

British Columbia was second in the team category with 455, followed by Manitoba at 463.

The championship, which concludes Saturday, is being played at the 6,500-yard Breezy Bend Golf course, a facility that has lived up to its name. Strong winds have caused high scores for some players.

Tod said he felt he was playing well above average and rates his chances as good for remaining in contention for the championship.

Sepp, displeased with his second round, said his putting wasn't up to the level he displayed Wednesday.

Rick Gibson of Victoria is third in the championship race with 149, after firing a 73 in the second round. Danny Mijovic of Unionville, Ont., shot a 74 for 151 while Chris Dockrill of Dartmouth, shot 78 for a 152.

The starting field of 190 was to be cut to the low 70, including ties for the concluding two rounds Friday and Saturday.

The junior and juvenile crowns are up for grabs this year with the defending junior champion Danny Maue of Kitchener, Ont., graduating to senior ranks and Sepp, last year's juvenile winner, moving into the junior category.

Strange leading B.C. Open

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Curtis Strange, a former collegiate champion, burned up the front nine of the Enjoie Golf Club course Thursday, scoring birdies on six holes en route to a seven-under-par 64 and a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $275,000 B.C. Open golf tournament.

Strange was trailed by Allan Tapie, who surprised himself by shooting a six-under-par 65 over the 6,915-yard course in upstate New York.

Gil Morgan, winner here in 1977, was tied with Larry Webb, two strokes behind Strange entering today's second-round of the 72-hole event.

Frank Conner birdied the last four holes of the course to lead a group of six golfers tied at three strokes behind the leaders after the $49,500 first prize money in the PGA event.

Defending champion Tom Kite finished eight strokes behind the leader.

Cosmos polish fails to shine

VANCOUVER (CP) — New York Cosmos apparently are more parts spilt than sheen in their North American Soccer League series against Vancouver Whitecaps.

The Cosmos and their international array of stars are supposed to be the hit and polish of the league, but resorted to another image Wednesday when losing 2-0 to the Whitecaps in Vancouver in the opening game of their best-of-three National Conference final.

Defender Carlos Alberto was one of the few Cosmos to find the mark. He did it with a shot of saliva directed towards one of the game officials on the tunnel leading to the dressing rooms.

Alberto was one of several Cosmos players and coaches who surrounded referee Peter Johnson to claim Vancouver's second goal was offside.

Kevin Hector of Vancouver, felled with eight seconds left in the game after a high kick by New York defender Eskandarian, said the Cosmos player tried to break his leg. Eskandarian drew a red-card infraction from the referee and was tossed out. He is suspended for the second game of the series Saturday in New York.

Hector also says the Cosmos' Dennis Tueart spit in his face and "only an animal would do that." The Whitecaps called Tueart a spitting image of Alberto.

The ill feeling between the teams — Vancouver has won six of seven games between the clubs since 1975 — boiled over last month in New York in a 15-minute brawl which brought one-game suspensions to four players, two from each team, including Eskandarian.

Alberta buys into Syncrude

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta government has increased its ownership in the Syncrude oil-sands project, largest commercial synthetic-oil plant in the world.

Alberta Energy Co. Ltd., 50-per-cent owned by the Alberta government, announced Thursday it has exercised its full option to acquire a 20-per-cent interest in Syncrude Canada Ltd., which operates the plant in the Fort McMurray area of northeastern Alberta.

AEC said cost of the acquisition is $570 million. This will give Syncrude a book value of $2.85 billion, up from the announced cost of $2.2 billion when the plant began production a year ago.

Although the AEC, created by an act of the legislature, is not a Crown corporation, there is little secret that it takes its duties seriously. Progressive Conservative government, which already owned 10 per cent of the project.

The existence of Syncrude was due largely to the efforts of Louheed, who joined hands with the federal and Ontario governments in 1975 to rescue the project when its original sponsors were on the verge of abandoning it.

Under the Winnipeg Agreement, Alberta lent and invested about $800 million in the project, estimated then to cost $2 billion. The AEC option was a condition of that agreement.

Another provision is that Syncrude oil will be set at the world price level, now about $26 a barrel, almost twice price of $13.75 paid to conventional oil produced in Canada.

Under the agreement, the federal, Alberta and Ontario governments picked up 15-, 10- and five-per-cent interests, respectively, in Syncrude. Ontario has since sold its interest to Pan-Canadian Petroleum Ltd. Other private owners of the project are Esso Resources, a subsidiary of Imperial Oil Ltd., and Gulf Canada Ltd. and Canada Cities Service Ltd.

Most of Alberta's investment in Syncrude comes from the ever-increasing Alberta heritage savings trust fund, built up with 30 per cent of the province's resource revenue and now totalling about $5 billion.

AEC had an option to acquire anywhere from five to 20 per cent of the Syncrude equity.

AEC said it has received several substantial offers to purchase its share of the Syncrude ownership. AEC said a decision on whether to resell part or all of its Syncrude ownership will be made in mid-September.

When AEC was created in 1975, the subscription price for its stock was $10 a share. It now trades in the $40 range.

During the first six months of 1979, AEC had net earnings of $11,968,000 or 79 cents per share, up 40 per cent from $8,517,000 or 56 cents per share for the same period last year.

Following disclosure in the news media, the government confirmed that 32 MLAs, including 18 cabinet ministers, hold AEC shares.

AEC is also the exclusive owner and operator of the pipeline that carries Syncrude oil to Edmonton.

LABOR NEEDS BETTER PRESS

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Lincoln Alexander says labor deserves a better hearing by government and he intends to open and expand the lines of communication.

In a Labor Day message, Alexander said that in the past there has been too little consultation on a too structured basis. His statement, in part said:

"I am eager to establish a strong and positive relationship with the labor movement, a relationship that better reflects the absolutely vital role labor plays in the future of our country and of all our citizens."

"It is essential that labor, management and government get to know each other better so that mutual problems can be discussed and viable solutions reached. There is a need for objective and continuing consultation on a vast range of matters and I am going to do my utmost to make this consultation process work."

"I will strive to live up to the expectations of the Canadian people who placed their trust in my ability to perform the functions of a minister of the Crown."

MAJOR OUTLETS

British see price battle

LONDON (CP) — One of Britain's largest retail outlets is cutting prices by up to 15 per cent, touching off the possibility that a battle of the shops may be in the offing.

Marks and Spencer, a bluechip retailer with branches in Canada, has launched an $11 million ($23 million) package of cuts lasting until at least Christmas.

It is only the third major price-slashing campaign by this company in the last 30 years.

Business analysts suggest the motive is that retailers are being squeezed between sharply rising costs and consumer resistance. They predict other companies may have to follow the Marks and Spencer lead.

Roy Burgess, deputy managing director of the rival British Home Stores, said: "We have no plans at the moment for changing our targets for the year. But we will monitor very closely what happens."

Price Minister Sally Oppenheim said of the Marks and Spencer move: "More power to their elbow. This is a perfect example of free enterprise in a competitive market place bringing better service and lower prices and maintaining employment and productivity. I am delighted..."

Brian Howard, joint managing director, said the cuts have been forced on Marks and Spencer by a shopping recession.

"Since tax increases in June, sales have dropped in the region of five per cent," he said.

Sir Marcus Sleaf, company chairman, said: "Ninety-two per cent of St. Michael (Marks and Spencer house brand) goods are British-made. "We therefore have a considerable responsibility to more than 300 United Kingdom suppliers and to the 200,000 people employed in the production and distribution of St. Michael goods and to our loyal customers."

The suppliers, by cutting wholesale prices to Marks and Spencer, are expected to bear about one-third of the $11-million cuts. However, not all of the 300 suppliers are going along with the promotion.

Some examples of how the move will benefit consumers.

SECOND SECTION

GNP takes drop

OTTAWA (CP) — The country's level of production fell during the second quarter of the year for the first time since mid-1976, government figures released Thursday show.

In annual terms, the output of goods and services shrank by 2.3 per cent for the three-month period ending June 30, compared with the previous quarter.

This indication of declining economic activity followed a surprisingly good first quarter, during which the economy grew at an annual rate of 6.5 per cent.

However, government officials warned that the first quarter growth rate was deceptively high and could not be maintained for the remainder of the year.

Statistics Canada said the value of all goods and services produced during the second quarter was $253.78 billion. The total for the previous quarter was $248.03 billion. Although the second quarter dollar figure was 2.3 per cent higher, the value of the output shrank by the time inflation was taken into account.

The federal agency said most of the decline resulted from a drop in export sales. As the economy of the United States weakened, that country curtailed its purchases of Canadian goods.

Consumers spent less than in the first quarter, business investment in machinery and equipment dropped and companies sold off some of the inventory of goods building up in their stockrooms and warehouses.

These factors combined to force businessmen to produce less, which led to a shrinking of Canada's total output.

Officially the country is not in a recession. Economists define a recession as two consecutive quarters during which the economy failed to grow.

The United States was officially declared to be in a recession this week by government spokesmen. Carter administration economists say the major remaining question is how long and how serious the recession will be.

New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent, calling the situation very serious, said "the prime minister has to act now to avoid major increases in unemployment this winter."

At a news conference called minutes after the release of the dismal economic indicator, Broadbent called on the government to take steps to protect Canadians from further fallout of the U.S. downturn.

Broadbent recommended:

—Tax relief for low- and middle-income persons.

—A one-per-cent reduction in interest rates.

—A winter public works program to provide municipal facilities and improve the country's transportation system.

—A cancellation of the scheduled Jan. 1 increase of $1 per barrel in the price of oil.

Liberal finance critic Herb Gray refused to outline specific measures to get the economy moving, but told reporters the country seems to be slipping into a recession and it may be too late to take effective action by the time Parliament resumes in October.

He repeated his party's demands that MPs be called back to Ottawa immediately and a budget brought down as quickly as possible.

The budget should be designed to "blunt the effects of the U.S. recession on Canadians," Gray said.

He said it was not fair to call on the Liberals, who were in power for most of the second quarter, to answer for the country's dismal growth record between April and June.

"The Liberals left the economy in better shape than it had been in for some time," Gray said.

"In the last three months we've seen nothing but drift and inactivity."

An analysis of the second quarter by federal statisticians indicated several major problem areas:

—There was a falling-off of production among most of the major exporting industries, particularly pulp and paper, aluminum and smelting and refining.

—There was a sharp drop (11.6 per cent) in motor vehicle production. The main reason was declining U.S. demand for full-sized cars and trucks.

—Although some companies are beginning to reduce their inventories of unsold goods, most continue to stockpile at a somewhat slower rate than during the first three months of the year.

"Off to school you go!" says Wendy Felker, word processing operator in Simon Fraser University's office of continuing studies. Skulls are part of skeletons for anatomical study being mailed out to students in a directed independent study course offered for the first time by the Kinesiology Department. Registration for this and other correspondence courses is now underway at SFU.

Clark looking for a deal

JASPER, ALA. (CP) — Prime Minister Clark will meet with Peter Lougheed, Alberta Premier, and William Davis, Ontario Premier, on Wednesday or Thursday to discuss energy and other matters.

Clark told a news conference at the end of a four-day inner cabinet meeting at this resort that he will meet Lougheed privately tonight and Davis in Ottawa or Toronto on Tuesday.

He also will meet Prince Edward Island Premier

Angus MacLean and Newfoundland Premier Brian Peckford on Wednesday or Thursday to discuss energy and other matters.

Ontario and Alberta have been bickering for some time over what to do with windfall profits that result from the increased production in Canadian oil at the higher world price.

Ontario has been saying the whole country should benefit from these profits and they should not go into the Alberta Heritage Savings Trust Fund which now stands at $5 billion. Eastern provinces propose a system of taxation that would make much of the high profit available to the other parts of Canada.

Clark said that in general preliminary talks with Lougheed and Davis the question of profit is bound to arise.

He said the profits made by Alberta and the multinational oil corporations, in particular, must be discussed whenever national energy policy is discussed.

He said he has no plan on profits to put before Lougheed or Davis.

He said he hoped he and the two premiers can take advantage of the national energy policy which would aim Canada toward energy self-sufficiency by 1990.

Carter okays veto on airlines discount plan

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Carter has upheld a decision by the U.S. Civil Aeronautics board to block proposed discount fares by Air Canada on flights to U.S. cities, the CAB announced Thursday.

The CAB had indicated earlier it wanted to block the planned "seat sale" by Air Canada that offered discounts of between 48 and 66 per cent on longer flights to the U.S. between Oct. 5 and Nov. 23 because Canadian authorities refused to let American Airlines offer similar discount fares on flights into Canada.

But because it involved international flights, the CAB decision required Carter's approval. The Air Canada proposal will be blocked, effective Sept. 1, the CAB said.

Air Canada has been selling tickets at the discount prices for the last few weeks. The airline said earlier this week it will try to honor the discount reservations even if Carter upholds the CAB suspension of its seat sale.

The CAB indicated Thursday the veto applies to the total Air Canada seat sale, including sales already made.

The CAB repeated its position that it believes in the philosophy behind offering fare discounts, but added "it has got to apply equally to both Canadian and American carriers."

Tories refuse to meet claim

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — The federal government does not plan to meet the former Liberal government's final land claims settlement deadline with western Arctic Inuit, an aide to Indian Affairs Minister Jake Epp says.

David Humphreys, Epp's executive assistant, said in a telephone interview it is highly unlikely the minister will have resolved the controversial federal settlement with the Committee for Original People's Entitlement (COPE) by the end of October.

Hugh Faulkner, former Indian affairs minister, signed the agreement in principle with committee officials last October in planning to have the final settlement legislated a year later.

Epp, on his first official, educational tour of the western Arctic, heard grievances Wednesday about the settlement from Inuit businessmen and hamlet councillors at Tuktoyaktuk. He met with committee officials at Inuvik.

Humphreys said: "He (Epp) had very serious concerns about the COPE agreement and where it was leading us before he went to the Tuk meeting. Some of those concerns were certainly underlined by what people there had to say."

According to the agreement in principle, western Arctic Inuit will own 86,830 square kilometres of land and, between 1981 and 1994, will receive annual payments totalling $45 million.

The Tuktoyaktuk group, which was locked in bitter conflict with committee officials even before the agreement in principle was signed, are worried about the future of the municipality.

"The argument is not so much that COPE would have jurisdiction but that it would be such an overwhelming landowner to be able to influence and perhaps impede the wishes of the Tuk council," Humphreys said.

When Epp met committee officials in Inuvik, they pressed for a commitment on a final settlement date. Epp said he had heard various concerns about the agreement and would satisfy himself that these concerns had been justly dealt with before going to cabinet.

"He told them he would get back to them but he made no commitment it would be by the October deadline," Humphreys said.

Epp has heard concern about the economic future in every community visited since his tour began Monday. Humphreys said: "The minister has been saying he doesn't view economic development in the valley and land claims as an irreconcilable conflict... he will not withhold development pending settlement."

"He recognizes there are valid claims and intends to give a new mandate as soon as possible."

The CAB's unhappiness with Air Canada's proposal stems partly from earlier actions by Canadian regulatory authorities in blocking "super saver" and half-fare discount proposals offered by American Airlines and United Airlines for flights into Canada.

The American veto of Air Canada's proposal applies only to U.S. flights.

Earlier this year, U.S. regulatory officials threatened to block Air Canada's spring seat sale. But the U.S. relented and imposed only a "conditional suspension" after the Canadian government agreed to let U.S. airlines offer similar discounts for flights into Canada.

The United States has an official policy of deregulating its air industry by eliminating unnecessary government rules. Canadian officials are objecting that the U.S. is trying to pressure Canada into accepting similar deregulation, despite the fact that Canada has fewer airlines that might be subject to collapse under wide-open competition.

Abby's Informed —And Reformed

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You stated in your column that in order for a man to convert to Judaism without circumcision he should find a "reformed" rabbi.

Abby, correction, please. We are not "reformed" rabbis. We are known as "Reform Rabbis". We in no way had to be reformed. OK?

RABBI YAVITZ IN L.A.

DEAR RABBI: OK. Oy voh! I stand corrected, which makes me a reformed columnist.

DEAR ABBY: I will try to make this short, but I have so much to tell that I could write a book.

I've been married 11 years. We have three wonderful kids. My husband has beaten me several times. Sometimes I had it coming, but most of the time I didn't.

The first time, he blacked my eyes and busted my jaw, which kept me home from work. I got out a warrant for his arrest, so he quit messing up my face. Then he started in on my stomach and breasts where the bruises wouldn't show. Once he twisted my arm so hard that he broke it.

Finally, I filed for divorce. Then you never saw a sweeter guy. He begged and pleaded and laid his paycheck at my feet, so I took him back. He was so nice I was beginning to love him all over again.

Two weeks later he was accusing me of seeing other men. He pulled me all over the house by my hair trying to get me to confess. I had nothing to confess, but I yelled so loud the neighbors called the police, and now he's in the slammer again.

Should I let him rot there? His people tell me that my kids need a father, that Jesus forgave seven times seven and all that jazz, but I can't take any more of this. What should I do?

HAD IT IN DALLAS

DEAR HAD IT: Your children may need a father, but they also need a living mother. If there is no hotline for battered wives, call your Family Service Association and ask where a battered wife and her children can get shelter and counseling. And please write again and let me know how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is between my husband (I'll call him Harold) and my father: Harold is 29 and Dad is 70. Six weeks ago they got into a heated argument over politics. A lot of angry words were exchanged and Dad told Harold never to set foot in his house again. (I'm sure Dad didn't mean it, but he's too proud to apologize.)

Dad is very bull-headed, and I can't see him calling Harold. Harold is very stubborn, and he won't make the first move either.

My mother and I are both heartsick over this but we don't know how to get the two of them together. Any suggestions?

ME AND MOM

DEAR ME: Tell Harold that out of respect for your father's age, the younger man should give in.

And ask your mother to keep working on your father, telling him that since HE told Harold never to set foot in his house again it's up to HIM to tell him HE didn't mean it. And may the bigger man extend his hand first.

Demand for fireplace in bedroom increases

The romance and warmth of a cheery fire has stirred men's souls since that long-ago time when primitive man first rubbed two stones together and produced its hot, red flame. From cave man tribes to today's modern family, young and old alike have dreamed their dreams and spun their tales before its mesmerizing glow. It is one of the few things that can be enjoyed by the family en masse or one by one. And, if current statistics are being read right, there seems to be a growing trend towards enjoying the light of the hearth in private.

North, South, East, West — all across our land, architects, home builders and fireplace dealers alike, are reporting more homeowners as opting for the fireplace in the bedroom. Whether it's the "me generation" building their first home, or the empty-nesters remodeling the old to suit new lifestyles, the fireplace is warming up the boudoir as well as the family room and kitchen.

There is no surprise that there is at least one fireplace in 65 percent of the single-family dwellings being built today. In fact, according to a leading fireplace journal, there are more than 22 million fireplaces in existence throughout the United States. A recent homebuilder's poll rated fireplaces among the top four features home buyers insist on.

A Houston, Texas, builder found that homeowners were using their bedroom fireplaces and/or wood-burning stoves to take the chill off the air, rather than turning on the main heating system for the entire house. "When electrical current was lost last winter in rural areas because of falling ice downing lines, it was the trusty fireplace and old wood-burning stove that got many Texans through the winter," he explained.

That story was echoed in many parts of New England and the Midwest. In the warmer states, such as Florida, builders reported that fireplaces and wood-burning stoves were being used to take the dampness out of the house.

From the West Coast — that bastion of avant-garde lifestyles — came this report: one innovative Southern California architect designed a sunken, seating area around his client's whirlpool bath in the master bath, and heated it with an open fireplace. Topping off this piece de resistance, was a set of see-through pyrex doors leading from the master bedroom into the bath, enabling the ambience of the glowing fireplace to be enjoyed from the bedroom as well.

This same architect also saw a definite increase in the bedroom fireplace. "This trend will continue to grow," he predicted, "as more and more parents seek a retreat from the traditional, catch-all family room."

Whether or not you are seeking a parent retreat; or heated area in front of your bath; or, in a more practical vein, ways to cut down the heating bill; or perhaps, just the warmth and beauty of an old-fashioned fireplace in the quiet of your bedroom — it is within your reach.

Pre-built fireplaces with zero clearance, free-standing fireplaces and stoves, as well as fireplace inserts, have brought man's love affair with the fireplace into the realm of every home.

Pre-fabricated, built-in units have the advantage of "zero clearance," which means the fireplace may be installed on or against existing walls, in a corner, or even between two rooms, serving as a room divider. Knocking out walls and other extensive remodeling is not necessary, nor is it necessary to build a foundation under the unit. However, if you want to be able to view the fire from your bed, you will have to elevate the firebox about two feet off the floor or raise the hearth.

Another nice feature is that the homeowner can face pre-built units with a variety of materials compatible with his or her bedroom decor, such as brick, stone, stucco, or even paneling. Gas-log sets also can be installed in zero clearance fireplaces. However, the

A CHEERY FIREPLACE IN THE BEDROOM is the ultimate in comfort for many, judging from the growing number of homeowners who have had fireplaces installed in their boudoirs.

Fireplace Institute recommends that you check first with your area's building codes. Instructions for proper venting and installation are supplied by the fireplace manufacturers.

Free-standing fireplaces or wood-burning stoves are another option. Styles range from ultra-modern to "Ben Franklin" types. However, free-standing units must be placed on a heat-resistant platform or base, and placement in the room will depend on the material of the adjacent walls. Proper clearance from combustible and non-combustible wall materials are specified on each unit.

Still another alternative is the fireplace insert, designed for the fireplace that is already in the room. The advantage of the insert is that the firebox, which is equipped with glass doors, is easily slid into the existing fireplace. The fire burns in this enclosed chamber, insuring minimal heat loss while allowing the beauty of the fire to be seen by the viewer.

Whatever your taste, there is a fireplace or wood-burning stove for you.

Repair water stains, seal out winter damage

Last winter, many areas of the country were pounded by severe weather that left behind a wide variety of property damage. One of the most common types of winter storm damage is water staining of interior ceilings and walls.

Repairing and preventing such damage is often a disappointing experience for the homeowner, since, if not done correctly, the stain will invariably bleed through the new coat of paint.

To repair water-stained surfaces effectively and economically requires proper preparation, and you start with pigmented shellac. This product serves as both a sealant and primer for new paint.

According to the experts at Fuller-O'Brien Paints, distributors of Ful-Hide pigmented shellac, there are several important procedures to follow in repairing water stains. Begin by making a thorough inspection of the roof, windows, doors and other exposed areas to uncover the spots where water is leaking and causing damage. Make sure shingles fit tightly and all other possible trouble spots are plugged.

Drying Important

Next, be certain the water-stained surface is completely dried out before applying any sealant. Plaster and wallboard are porous materials that often hold water for long periods of time. Without sufficient drying time, any primer sealer and topcoat will simply rewet the stain and cause bleeding.

Once the surface is dry, applying a pigmented shellac before painting will provide several advantages. A pigmented shellac such as Ful-Hide will prime, seal and kill water stains on interior or exterior surfaces with one coat. Pigmented shellac also hides other imperfections such as knots and sappy areas, prevents alkali from bleeding through, and seals porous home surfaces to eliminate suction "in-take" of paint.

Because it is fast-drying and goes on easily, this type of sealant is also used extensively in commercial, industrial and institutional buildings where production and service facilities must be maintained without interruption.

For all these reasons, Fuller-O'Brien paint specialists strongly recommend using a pigmented shellac as a paint primer for long-lasting home protection against water staining. This is especially recommended for areas of the country with traditionally harsh winter weather. And, with winter coming on, it's a maintenance measure that could prevent more serious damage and reduce repair costs in the long run.

Make your own "instant" area-rugs... with fringe. Fringe benefits — a splendid way to transform odd size carpets into attractive area rugs. Many times carpet shops or rug departments have good buys in sample carpets—often in just the right color too. Also, when moving from one place to another—just by adding fringe, the carpeting which doesn't quite fit wall-to-wall can become something new and exciting.

The more daring decorator can create rounds, ovals or even free-form shapes by first making a paper pattern and cutting the carpet with a utility knife.

Nothing can be more simple than attaching fringe to carpet. Many adhesives are available for gluing fabric to fabric. Place fringe on the floor, apply glue and use gentle pressure to adhere carpet to fringe. Keep in mind many household glues can withstand dry cleaning and shampooing.

Another idea might be to use heavy duty double-faced tape — which can be removed easily.

It's also wise to select a luxurious-looking yet easy-care fiber.

LET THAT TEENAGER DO-IT-HIMSELF! He'll be delighted if he can update his bedroom with his very own decorating ideas.

Let student redecorate room to reflect him

As boys grow up, those bedrooms you once so lovingly decorated for them no longer reflect their lifestyle. Why not let your teenager have the fun — and expense — of doing over his room to suit his changing tastes.

Nowadays, do-it-yourself furnishings are so simple to put together and so inexpensive, most young people can easily create their own environment at a price their budgets can afford.

(Or, you might want to give your son a modest budget to work with, and Dad can always lend a hand with any carpentry.)

The first thing your teenager will probably want to get rid of is that youth bed that seems childish to him now. Don't be surprised if he wants to put a mattress on the floor! It's "in" with young people today. One alternative to this would be a platform that can be constructed so that the bed appears to float — a look that'll please both the trendy teenager and his more practical Mom. The new, quilted mattress covers provide an inexpensive way to give beds that sofa look he may prefer.

He'll probably want a desk for studying and typing up reports and there are many easy ways to create a good, working surface with storage. Flue liners from a local building supplier, or low file cabinets, topped with a flush, unfinished door make a nice, long desk to accommodate his school supplies and then some.

For books, stereo and records, inexpensive steel shelving, or industrial wire shelving are some of the possibilities, or he may opt for wall-hung units.

Unfinished furniture is an economical alternative to buying expensive, new pieces to complete the teen's bedroom — or, a mod-art paint job on some of his old furniture may bring it up to date.

For extra seating, colorful bean bag chairs are both fun and comfy... or big foam squares, covered in your teen's choice of fabrics, make for "neat" seating arrangements, too.

A visit to your local do-it-yourself store will undoubtedly give that teenager plenty of decorating ideas. And, no doubt he has posters and gimmicks galore to accessorize his bedroom in a way that says in no uncertain terms, "This is me!"

SELL FIRST?

Homeowners who are considering the sale of their present property and the purchase of another one, frequently face the question of whether to 'sell first'.

To sell first, means that by placing your present property on the market, there exists the possibility it will be sold before you select another.

If it is 'sold first' what is your position? You will know the exact amount of money the sale of your property will provide, so you have a definite concept of what you have to work with in looking at other properties to buy.

You will know the exact date on which you will have to move out or give up your present property. You can then look at properties and make an offer to buy knowing on what date you want to take possession of the new property.

If the dates cannot coincide you can make arrangements for temporary housing or possibly arrange an extension of occupancy with the purchaser of your old property. If you consider requesting an extension of time, be certain that it does not and will not upset your sale contract. Your lawyer should be consulted as to the facts and procedures in this regard.

By having already sold your property, you can concentrate your attention on the selection and purchase of a suitable replacement property. You can make an offer to purchase based on facts, although you may also feel a sense of urgency to find what you want.

The answer to the question of whether to 'sell first' will depend on your specific situation. Take the time to determine what problems could arise and decide what alternative you have to those problems — there is no general answer.

Now decorator fronts personalize dishwasher

A distinctly personal kitchen is now as easy as loading the dishwasher because that hard-working appliance is taking on the added dimension of reflecting taste, fashion and individuality.

Appliances used to be chosen with an eye to blending into the background of kitchen decors. Now, a dishwasher front can become the focal point of the room. Everything from posters to photo blowups and needle art can be mounted in special trim kits, readily available from appliance stores. The stylized fronts express a family's individuality, while setting the decorating mood of the room. Once a focal point is created, wall and window coverings are chosen to complete the total decorating scheme.

Testimony to the growing popularity of this idea is that Maytag has found that approximately 20 percent of its current dishwasher shipments call for custom trim kits—metal frames that permit dishwasher fronts to be stylized. Creativity in determining the look of the panel is practically limitless because materials can be adequately protected from heat and moisture.

Costs of utilizing a decorator front panel run the gamut from inexpensive to extravagant, depending on what is placed on the dishwasher front.

By putting the dishwasher front to work, homemakers are able to achieve a distinctly personalized kitchen without the expense of working with custom-made materials.

Taco Treats

Teens Can Fix

Mom and Dad are desperate for a night off but they know if they leave those teens to feed themselves, they'll end up eating potato chips and ketchup on toast.

There's an easy way to avoid that. Leave the teens a treat that you can make in the morning or the day before. It's Mexican Tacos, a clever dish. Lots of teens love Mexican food. As most mothers of teens know, you can buy taco shells all boxed and ready to serve, and the filling is quickly and easily made.

Mexican Tacos

- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 1/2 lbs. ground beef
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1/2 green pepper, chopped
- 1 teaspoon Ac'cent
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 1/2 teaspoons chili powder
- 1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce
- 12 taco shells
- 1 cup shredded lettuce
- 1 tomato, chopped
- 1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Heat oil in large skillet. Add ground beef, onion and green pepper and cook until beef is browned and onion is tender, but not brown. Add Ac'cent, salt, pepper, chili powder and tomato sauce; cook, uncovered, over low heat for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Spoon hot mixture into taco shells and top with shredded lettuce, chopped tomato and cheese.

Former Terrace girl weds

HOUSTON AND Terrace share interest with Abbotsford in an August 4 wedding in which Jane Susanna Hoffman became the bride of Ronald James Baker.

Bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.J. (Bob) Hoffman of 696 Columbia Road, Abbotsford and formerly of Terrace, and the groom is the son of A. Baker and the late Mrs. Baker of Houston.

Afternoon ceremony took place in St. Matthew's Anglican Church and was performed by Rev. J. Major.

Vocalist was Hew Gwynne of North Vancouver.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a wedding gown of cloud soft polyorganza and chantilly lace. Laced bodice was fashioned with a see-through yoke and a high laced collar. The full bishop sleeves were gathered to tight banded cuffs. A-line skirt fell from the semi empire waistline to form a full circle train edged with chantilly lace. Deep flounced hemline encircled the gown. Finger tip moon veil of silk illusion was bordered with antiqued chantilly lace and held with a crown of lace and seed pearls.

With her wedding ensemble, the bride wore an heirloom gold cross which had been worn by her mother at her wedding and great grandmother in London, England.

She carried a cascading bouquet of mercedes roses and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Carlyn Hoffman, sister of the bride, and bridesmaid was Irene Cruickshank of Terrace.

Flower girl was Chandra Allen of North Vancouver, niece of the groom. They wore orange floral print gowns and carried bouquets of orange daisies and baby's breath.

Ring bearer was Rob Hoffman brother of the bride.

Stan Baker of Terrace was best man for his brother and the guests were ushered by Cy Hoffman, cousin of the bride, and Kevin Johnston.

Orange color theme was continued in the table decorations made by Mrs. Eldon Hill for the reception at the Rancho. Master of ceremonies was Eldon Hill and toastmaster was George Cruickshank of Terrace.

Prayer was given by Rev. J. Major.

Lisa Fox of North Vancouver was in charge of the guest book.

Following a wedding trip to Harrison Hot Springs and Osoyoos, the young couple are residing in Abbotsford.

Plan sounds good now

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark's election promise to cut taxes by $2 billion, ridiculed by the Liberals, now is beginning to look like a good idea, a Liberal party spokesman said Wednesday.

MP John Reid, chosen by fellow members of the Liberal shadow cabinet to act as a spokesman after a five-hour strategy session, said some Liberals feel the economy has deteriorated so much since the spring that it may be time for the stimulation a major tax cut would bring.

The Liberals denounced Conservative tax-cutting plans during the campaign as a tool for buying votes. They also ridiculed Clark's plan as muddled and expensive when the Conservative leader acknowledged that his efforts to stimulate the economy might cause a temporary ballooning of the federal deficit.

Reid said the economic situation has grown considerably worse since the election and seems destined to deteriorate further by budget time, as the U.S. experiences poor growth and rapidly rising prices.

"Maybe the economy has changed significantly, maybe we have to look at the famous stimulative deficit."

Reid criticized the government for its slow pace in implementing new economic programs.

Tunnel workers pray

TOKYO (AP) — Workers digging the longest undersea tunnel in the world believe that a jealous goddess protects them while they work — as long as no women enter the worksite.

It's a man's world in the Seikan Tunnel, which, when completed in 1982, will link the cities of Aomori and Hakodate in northern Japan and cut travelling time to Sapporo from Tokyo to a little less than six hours from the present 17 hours.

The tunnel will enable Japan's famed "bullet" trains to travel at speeds of about 150 kilometres an hour on a track 200 metres below sea level.

The working men believe that the tunnel is protected by the goddess Sanjin, who becomes jealous when women are admitted inside.

On the two occasions when women visited the site, flooding occurred soon after. Fearful of incurring more divine wrath, the men had the tunnel closed to women sightseers after the last visit in 1971.

They also believe that it is taboo to whistle in the tunnel for fear of summoning evil spirits.

On the first day of each month the workers pray to an image of the goddess enshrined in front of the tunnel, asking for her blessing while they work.

"Personally, I don't believe in the goddess," said a spokesman for the Japan Railway Construction Public Corp., which is handling the project. "But, if it makes the men happier, it's OK."

How the goddess entered Japanese mythology no one seems to know. She is believed to give birth to 12 children every year and is worshipped by hunters, lumbermen and charcoal workers. Offerings of sake and fish are said to make her happy. Her messengers in this world are supposed to be wolves, snakes and monkeys.

When the Seikan Tunnel is completed after an estimated expenditure of $800 million, it will bring Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost main island and last underpopulated frontier, into the sphere of overpopulated, urban Japan.

How the goddess will react when women start using the high-speed rail facilities is anybody's guess.

Resorts out of business

WEST HAWK LAKE, Man. (CP) — Two summer resorts in Manitoba's Whiteshell provincial park have gone bankrupt this year.

Another eight changed hands in the last few years as novices in the business finally realized that their dreams were bigger than their wallets.

"People get into it without seeing what they're getting into," says Victor Harbottle, who has operated a resort with his wife for the last 22 years.

He notes that young people seem to become discouraged when initial returns on their investment appear small.

Harbottle says people buying resorts or campgrounds here must take into account possible streaks of bad weather and the short season in the Whiteshell.

People get the wrong impression when they see a camp in summer," he says. "It's always busy and going, but after the September long weekend, things slow down."

Bob Bridge, acting director of tourism for Manitoba, says his department is trying to remove "the rose-colored glasses" which some prospective operators have donned.

"We do our best to impress on people just what it takes to make one of those things go."

president of the Eastern Manitoba Tourist Association, says new resort owners must come to realize that they can't afford outside labor.

"You're the carpenter, the plumber ... everything," says Draper, the three year owner of a lodge on West Hawk Lake, about 150 kilometres east of Winnipeg.

Kathy Nally says she and her husband, who are in their first year as lodge owners at Barrier Bay, have found the experience scary but no worse than they expected.

She says the biggest drawback this year has been low water in area lakes because of maintenance work on a Manitoba Hydro dam to the northeast.

Mrs. Nally intends to compile a thorough list of facilities that sh believes are needed in the Barrier Bay section of the provincial park to attract more visitors.

But the couple hasn't regretted the decision to plunge into the tourist business.

"It's beautiful here and we really like it," Mrs. Nally says.

Hair used as fertilizer

NEW YORK (AP) — Years ago, when spring came, Indians would cut their hair, grown long through the cold winter, and spread it on their vegetable patches to discourage animals from browsing there.

Today, both scientists and farmers are collecting human hair from beauty parlors and barber shops and putting it in net bags to hang from trees and shrubs. This is to deter deer from feeding on the vegetation.

It works, quite well, says Jay McAninch, wildlife biologist at the New York Botanical Garden.

has been under way there since 1977.

The method, says McAninch, is inexpensive, the material readily available, nontoxic and completely biodegradable.

What he wants to know is how long the hair will remain effective under various climatic conditions and the best packaging techniques for best results. Rain washes away the hair oil, which is the key ingredient, and sunlight causes bleaching. The hair is not effective for more than one season.

McAninch says human hair works better than deer up to about a third of the way; that is, the hair is better than washed; that short hair works better than long hair because it is cut closer to the head and thus has more of the oily sebum secreted on to the hair by the scalp's sebaceous glands.

The biologist one day hopes to synthesize the secretion inexpensively and spray it on a substance, possibly felt, that will hold it and make it effective for a long period.

Men's hair works a bit better than women's because generally it has not been washed directly before being cut. Women's hair also may have been dyed or sprayed, lessening its effectiveness.

McAninch, 27, says much of the testing is in areas where there already is planted material and where deer herd for the winter.

The intent in trying biological repellents is to produce an odor that animals will not like. The aim is to protect orchards, vineyards, nurseries, farms and gardens.

In New York State, one of the larger apple-producing states, officials estimate that deer damage amounts to $5 million to $11 million annually.

PEKING (CP) — China has almost halved its population growth rate in the last seven years, Vice-Premier Chen Muhua announced recently. She said the government would introduce a family planning law that would economically penalize people with large families.

Never fear! Captain Canuck is returning

WINNIPEG (CP) — Captain Canuck is back, heading across the pages of comic books to battle evil-doers seeking to undermine the true North, strong and free.

The captain's creator, Richard Comely, is here this week to aid the return of the Captain, who disappeared from newstands three years ago after three issues.

Comely was promoting the fourth issue of the Captain Canuck series, which he says will appear shortly, and explaining how financial problems trapped his superhero in the middle of an adventure.

He also promised the Winnipeg creditors left hanging when the captain's mission was aborted that they will get their money, although it will take time.

"When I started this thing, I had no assets, no money, just an idea," says Comely. "But people had faith in me, they trusted me. I want to repay that trust."

"With the success of the comic this time around, I'll be able to pay everyone off. It might take five years."

Comely says he and the new backers of the comic book venture will honor the 2,300 subscriptions taken before the superhero went into limbo. Continuity is guaranteed because Issue No. 4 will pick up where No. 3 left off.

Ultimately, success will depend on how well Captain Canuck sells in the United States. Comely believes the revived series will be an instant bestseller in Canada, but he hopes monthly sales south of the border will reach 100,000 copies, about twice the maximum domestic sales.

He says he has plans to increase exposure for the captain, through a newspaper comic strip and TV. Comely's new backer, CKR Production Ltd., plans to market Captain Canuck pens, posters, T-shirts and jackets.

On his return, the superhero resumes his role as the top antiterrorist operative of the Canadian International Security Organization.

Issue No. 5, which Comely says is at the printers, will tell how Tom Evans, a fictitious part-Indian member of the RCMP, became Captain Canuck. Future issues will dwell on his non-professional life.

The last 200,000-copy issue was printed in Winnipeg for $19,000, and Comely says the same job could have been done in the United States for $8,700.

He says the new Captain Canuck is printed by World Color Press, based in the U.S. and the largest comic book and magazine publisher in the world.

NO EMPTY THREAT MARSEILLES, France

(CP) — After being dunked in a public swimming pool, a 14-year-old boy angrily threatened the two offending youngsters: "My brothers will be here to pay you back." The next day three carloads of armed men arrived at the pool. They beat up attendants, smashed changing rooms, threw people into the pool and caused $12,000 damage. The two youngsters they came looking for were not at the pool.

Butterfly dreams just headed south

TORONTO (CP) — Masul and Sanjay Khosla have given up waiting for their butterflies to return home.

None of the 75 distinctive orange, black and white monarchs that the brothers reared last year from eggs has come fluttering back to the Khosla home in Mississauga, west of Toronto.

Each year the handsome butterflies breed in Canada and then head south for a winter sojourn in the southern United States and Mexico.

The Khosla boys marked their carefully raised butterflies for identification purposes in the event that they returned.

But Sanjay, 13, and Mukul, 14, are not disheartened by the errant monarchs. They currently are in the process of hatching a new generation of monarchs from eggs they collected on trips to the family's cottage near Bowmanville, east of Oshawa, Ont.

"This year we hope we will have about 100," Sanjay says.

For the last three years the lifecycle of the monarch butterfly has kept the two boys busy during their summer vacation.

They carefully gather the tiny eggs of the butterfly. A female lays 400 a year on average, Sanjay says.

The boys then wait for them to hatch as caterpillars in nursery boxes built by Mukul.

"We now have 40 caterpillars and in the past two weeks we have had five butterflies come out," Sanjay says proudly.

ENTERPRISING DAD

He imports nannies

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — After the death of his wife, Ted Bailey, father of three young daughters, managed to turn a domestic crisis into a lucrative business.

He found that life had become one big shuffle between the babysitters and the office.

"I was stuck," he recalls. "The two oldest girls were in school, but Stephanie (nine months) was another matter."

"She was going to a lady across the street on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, another sitter the other days, and I was always worrying about what to do if I had to stay an extra hour at the office."

The arrangement wasn't workable, so Bulk, got in touch with QC Personnel, a Hamilton agency placing live-in help.

They came up with Francoise Margery, a 24-year-old student teacher from Paris, who had been eager to come to Canada.

Three months later she was in Windsor, the family was happy and Bailey decided to open a franchise of QC so other parents could reap the benefits of live-in help.

If there's neighborhood talk about a young nanny and a young widower, Miss Margery hasn't heard it yet. "And I don't care," she says firmly. "I'm here to do my work and learn English. The only way to do that is to come to Canada and you have to live with a family to have the contacts."

While the relationship between Miss Margery and Bailey is strictly business it's a different matter with the children.

Nine-year-old Shona and Rebecca, 6, took it hardest when their mother died, and Miss Margery is able to provide a motherly touch without trying to step into maternal shoes.

"I discipline the children when they need it," she admits, "but not too often. That's their father's job."

Most young women shun single-parent homes but are eager to set up housekeeping with young working couples. Last year 700 nannies from Britain and Switzerland signed up with Canadian Manpower and Immigration for a year of housework and adventure in Canada. Most were 25 or younger.

Why be a nanny? The pay isn't terribly enticing, say many, but the travel is — so much so that almost all pay their own fares over to Canada.

And why sponsor a nanny? At $70 a week, you can't ask for much more.

Nannies come professionally trained, take care of the children, handle the housework, whip up meals and live in — whatever it takes to accommodate your schedule.

Considering that day-care centres run anywhere from $40 to $70 a week per child and don't include any fringe benefits, it's easy to understand why the nanny business is booming.

Bailey says most nannies will continue to come from Europe because Canadian women simply won't take the jobs.

"Canadian women are the ones who want out of the house. You can't pay them to do this kind of work."
